

Your Own Bestfriend

Having a best friend is a good feeling. Then you both go your own separate way. Owning a pet is also a good feeling and will be more loyal than any human friend. Gaining trust from an animal is hard because they don't know you but once they get comfortable with you they will love you and not leave your side. There's many types of dogs to get along with. If you're a very energetic person there are many options. A lot of types of dogs get misunderstood because of how they look or how the person has experience with that type of dog. For example pitbulls get misunderstood a lot because of how aggressive they are but it's on how they were treated and how they were trained. Any dog could be aggressive as long as there treated right
